ONE of the most amusing things to be seen at this season of the year is the attempt of the jay-hawks of the country press to kill Old Man Van Wyck, while at the same time they proclaim him as one dead.

THE Democrat got badly worsted in its discussion with Mr. Egan regarding the infallibility of the pope, and how far he could control the actions of a good Catholic. Mr. Calhoun is an excellent politician, but he will never make his mark as a theologian.

It is said that Josie Mansfield, the dashing leader of the demi monde, who, nearly a score of years ago gained unenviable reputation in the Fisk-Stokes tragedy, died in New York, in a secluded part of the city, and went to her grave unattended. Another illustration of the old adage that "to be virtuous is to be happy."

THE COURIER is in receipt of a very handsome invitation to attend the dedication of the press headquarters, at the Centennial building in Cincinnati, on the evening of June ninth. The affair will consist of a reception and banquet to distinguished journalists, and promises to be one of the finest editorial affairs ever given in the central states. The exposition opens July 4th and closes October 27th. Our thanks are hereby extended to the invitation committee.

THE Y. M. C. A. project seems to languish. The fact of the matter is that the business men of the city have been called upon so many times lately for contributions toward worthy projects such as universities, churches, and the like that they can hardly afford to bear the brunt of this one, as one of our contemporaries seems to think. But we must have this building; we cannot do without it. Now why not divide this $25,000 yet necessary into ten, twenty and fifty dollar subscriptions, and let a most thorough canvass be made, not by one or two men, but by a dozen, two dozen. Infuse vigor into the canvass, wake up the people to the existing necessity, put some hurrah into it.

THE many friends of Mr. F. S. Eustis are rejoicing over his promotion to be general passenger and ticket agent of the C. B. & Q. For a number of years past he has occupied a similar position with the B. & M. and is well qualified for the duties of his new position. He succeeds another Nebraska young man, Mr. Paul Morton, who has been appointed general freight agent. Mr. Eustis' successor is Mr. John Francis, one of the most genial gentlemen who has ever assisted in the conduct of a railroad company. He has been M. Eustis' assistant during that gentleman's term of office, and is at home as general passenger agent of the B. & M. The change will be a beneficial one all around, as well as a pleasant one, and the patrons of the road will have the same careful treatment as in the past.

THE NOVELTY of a complete exhibit of Woman's Work will be introduced this season by the Minneapolis Exposition. At first thought it might seem that there is nothing in such an exhibit but "Fancy Work," but when it is considered that over 2,000 patents, (many of them on machinery of the most complicated character) that in the United States alone more than fifteen hundred books have been written by women within the past four years and that many large manufacturing and mercantile concerns are conducted by ladies it will be apparent that there are great capabilities in this display. Everything made by ladies will be shown and those wishing to exhibit are invited to correspond with Mrs. E. R. Holbrook, the superintendent, care Exposition.

ONE of the handsomest and most valuable books intrinsically, that we have yet seen is "Hill's Album of Biography and Art," an advertisement of which appears in another column. The author, Mr. Thos. E. Hill, is widely known as the compiler of "Hill's Manual of Social and Business Forms," a recognized authority on such matters. The book contains portraits and brief biographies of men who have been and are prominent in the world of letters, religion, medicine, art, war, science and music, besides numerous chapters on history, science and various subjects, which come under daily observation. The book is valuable, not only as a work of reference, but contains much information that every one should know. No library can be considered complete without it, and to the editor of the daily paper it is worth far more than an encyclopedia. The volume is bound in full Russia, with gilt edges, and is very handsome.

"The Story of Beryl," just concluded in the Novelist, is a charming little story of life in the south before the war. It is by Mr. C. W. Hutson, one of the rising literary men of the south, and will be published in book form by John B. Alden. "Fun and Folly" by Maurice Thompson commences in to-day's issue.

The Bane of Hot Weather.

There is no time that is looked forward to by the mothers of small children, with more mortal dread, than the hot weather of the summer months, especially is this the case when their children are teething. The number of children that are carried away annually by bowel complaint, in its various forms is prodigious. Yet almost every case could be cured by proper care and treatment. During the past fifteen years, it has been abundantly proven that the worst cases could be cured and by a remedy within the reach of all Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has cured thousands of cases, that were considered hopeless, it has cured them after physicians have failed to relieve, it has cured them after other medicines had been tried without benefit, it has even cured them after they had become unconscious. It can always be depended upon, and should be kept in hand, by every mother of small children. When children are teething, the diarrhoea can not be checked permanently, as the same cause that produced it will bring it on again, but it can and should be controlled by giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, as the case may require. Then when the child is through teething, the diarrhoea may be effectually checked. This remedy has been the sole reliance of thousands of mothers throughout the west for over fifteen years, and its cures have shown it to be the best and most reliable remedy ever produced for the purposes. When reduced with cold water and sweetened, it is pleasant to take. Many children like it. It is put up in 25 cent, 50 cent and 1 dollar bottles.

My child, seven months old, was taken sick with summer complaint. I called on our family physician and procured medicine, and used it for nearly three weeks but still the child continued to get worse. I was persuaded to try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and inside of four days, we had the child's bowels regulated and in a short time it was well. Since that time I always keep a bottle of the preparation in my house.

A. O. MOTES, Scottsville, Kansas.
We feel satisfied that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is the best medicine we handle for all diseases of the bowels; we have given it a thorough test. A member of our family, a little girl, had been very sick with bowel complaint, we had the doctor to see her twice, after giving her what medicine the doctor left and seeing that she would have to have more we concluded to try Chamberlain's. From the first dose she commenced to improve and soon recovered.

WHAT SHALL WE WEAR?

TOILETTES THAT FIGURE IN THE WORLD OF FASHION.

Some of the Many Pleasing Styles That Are Represented in the Newest Bonnets and Round Hats Imported by New York Milliners.

It will be a strange thing if anybody this season is not satisfied with her hats and bonnets. The styles are so diversified as to have wide license in way of selections and a display of personal taste. Not only is there a great variety as regards color and material, but in shapes and sizes.

FIG. 1.—AN ELEGANT LACE BONNET.

Included among new importations seen recently by the writer is a capote in tulle, partly concealed by radiating loops of ribbons; shade from pink to yellow, in keeping with the wreath and bunch of pinks which ornament the front of the pointed brim. This bonnet was made to harmonize with a gown from Worth's, the floral trimming of which consisted of variegated carnations.

Fig 1 illustrates an elegant affair made of black Chantilly lace, furred on over a gold colored silk foundation. The pointed border is edged with a pinked out silk ruche, veiled with lace. Yellow plumes creep over the crown and surround the lace wing. The ribbon ties are black moire shot with yellow.

STYLISH FRENCH HATS.

Fig. 2 shows a hat of black lace, relieved by a tuft of Jacqueminot roses nestled under the brim, and the fan shaped plaiting arranged over a puffed crown. At the back there is a bow of red velvet, the ties are of black lace. Fig. 3 is a black straw hat trimmed with a cluster of knotted loops in dark blue satin ribbon and spray of passion flowers. The projecting brim is lined with a pale shade of blue velvet over which is spread silver net, it is finished off with a silver and gilt cord.

A majority of the round hats are made of one color straw, lined with another shade of the same color or another color. Black and maize and black and beige are much used in this way, and the ribbons are of two colors. A compromise between a round hat and bonnet is a round hat with a brim close and narrow at the back and wide and flaring in front, with wide ribbon ties.

Visiting and Reception Toilets.

Very striking toilets and bright colors are worn this season at afternoon receptions and for making visits. These are Directoire gowns of flower striped silks, made with a straight undraped polonaise tied at the waist in front with ribbons, and trimmed with broad revers above, or else a deep long shawl collar of pale rose or blue silk or moire; pink, green and buff are the colors in the stripes of such silks, and they are made over a skirt of the material hanging quite plain below the polonaise. White silk muslin in puffs, with lace, forms the large cravat at the throat. The Directoire bonnet has a broad crown and is set quite far back on the head (not merely on top of it), and is trimmed with a gold embroidered band around the crown, and there is a facing of colored velvet or of shirred tulle inside its flaring brim.

Rose pink and pinkish mauve dresses of wool crepe and moire are also worn by guests at day weddings. The small bonnet is of English crape, or else of net the color of the dress, and is given character by a touch of black; thus a pink crape bonnet with tucks drawn over narrow pink ribbon has its brim edged with crushed pink roses on which falls gathered black lace; the strings are of black lace tied up in a close bow, with some narrow pink ribbon for strapping it.

The new toilets seen on Fifth avenue have very small tournures, and already a large tournure entirely destroys the good style of a gown, as nothing looks so old fashioned as the fashion which has just gone out. Fortunately it is an easy matter to lower the steels of last year's skirts, leaving out the third steel altogether, and diminishing the heavy and unwholesome pad bustle to half its size. —Harper's Bazar.

A Word About Fans.

Fans are neither large nor small this year but of medium size. Some are seen of gold canvases with painted subjects on gauze; besides these are those previously had, of gauze, lace and feathers, the latter are a trifle stiff, but capable of rendering the best service on occasion.

What Men May Wear.

Square cornered cuffs fastened with linked buttons.

A new stand up collar that has not only bent points, but a half inch of its upper rim reversed outwards, to prevent chafing of the neck in warm weather.

Pique braces that will launder, to wear with summer costumes.

Almost as broad an expanse of shirt front, with morning dress, as one used to see with an old fashioned, high cut clawhammer.

The correct trouser, which is eighteen and a half inches at the knee and from seventeen and a half to eighteen at the bottom, for average height. This is called the peg top style and measurements may be suited to individual build.

The swallowtail coat, which has undergone some slight alteration. There is now no longer any stitching or binding on the edge. The sleeves are larger, to admit of carrying the handkerchief, which is no longer worn inside the vest.
